

West Virginia State University

Department of History

Tenure Track Assistant Professor

The Department of History at West Virginia State University invites applications for a tenure track assistant professor. Candidates must have completed requirements for the Ph.D. by December 31st 2009. The position begins in January 2010. We seek a qualified individual with research and teaching interest in any non-Western field within the discipline. Send curriculum vitae, transcripts for all degrees (initial submission may be unofficial copies), and a statement of research interest and teaching philosophy to Dr. Billy Joe Peyton, Associate Professor and Chair, Department of History, West Virginia State University, Hill Hall 301, P.O. Box 1000, Institute, WV 25112-1000. Review process will begin November 15th; applications postmarked after November 1st, 2009 will not be considered. West Virginia State University is a historically black college which has evolved into a fully accessible, racially-integrated, multigenerational institution. Because of this tradition, the university enrolls a wide range of students and assists them in achieving their academic, civic, and career potential through quality undergraduate programs in a campus environment nationally recognized as a “Living Laboratory of Human Relations.” West Virginia State University is the largest institution of higher learning in the Charleston metropolitan area, serving approximately 3000 students. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply.